Wayne Dalton Announces New Garage Door Design Center

LEWISVILLE, Texas (August 22, 2016) – Designing the perfect garage door for your home can be tough, but Wayne Dalton makes it easy. On Monday, Wayne Dalton released their new Garage Door Design Center on wayne-dalton.com, allowing customers to easily customize a garage door to fit their home.

“We are excited to present the new design center and see our customers try it out,” Wayne Dalton’s Brand Manager, Sarah Schram said. “It’s very intuitive and user-friendly. This is a great tool for our customers to see how a garage door can enhance the curb appeal of their home.”

The new Garage Door Design Center allows customers to build the door step-by step, first picking a model and then customizing it by panel designs, door size, color, window, glass and decorative hardware. To visualize what the door will look like, users can then attach their design to an uploaded photo of their home or choose a home from the one of a variety of stock photos. Finally, customers can share their design on social media or print or email their garage door design.

“My favorite part of the new Design Center is definitely the option to share, save and even name your project,” Schram said. “Customers can share their creations on social media or send it to their local Wayne Dalton dealer to make their dream garage door a reality.”
